GENSUS MEN'S BUSY PENGILS.

125,000 Gothamites Enrolled in the First Day's Count.

Irritating, Amusing and Pathetic Incidents Related by the Querists.

The nine hundred and ninety-two young men who, as Uncle Sam's interviewers started out yesterday morning to gather the Magnificent Preparations for the census statistics of the population of this big city, rested from their first day's labors

That they had a congulation to the first and relationship to the congression of the congr EXEMPLIATOR LOQUE'S SUICIDE.

The assault on Enumerator Marks in Smith's saloon on East Forty-fifth street yesterday morning did not strike very much terror in the breasts of his colleagues. A deplorable and affecting incident, however, that elicited a great dear of pity, was the suicide late yesterday afternoon of Eumoerator Frank Logue, at his boarding-house.

Logue complained in the morning of indisposition and said he felt too weak to undertake the covering of the district resigned to him. He decined to romain at home for the day, but when he read in an afternoon newspaper that he, with other abecutes, was liable to a $500 fine he became despondent and took a dose of rate poison, dying several hours later.

A half dozen enumerators were discussing his sudden demise this morning in the Centimental Insurance Company of this city, which has been in the courts in various phases for some years past.

The suit is for the recovery of about $80,000, which the plaintiffs claim to have been swindled out of in the early part of 1384 through the chaintiffs claim to have been swindled out of in the early part of 1384 through the dishcrest practices of the company, and erroneous impression about his work. It is easy to do when you start about it the right way. I seemed over two hundred names resterday, and I was not assaulted or thrown out. When I reached the objectionable questions, however, I quickly informed the people that it was optional for them to ans Office when an Evening World reporter came in.

"Poor fellow," said a venerable looking enumerator, "he must have gotten an errone outs impression about his work. It is easy to do when you start about it the right way. I seemed over two humired names yesterday, and I was not assaulted or thrown out. When I reached the objectionable questions, however, I quickly informed the people that it was optional for them to answer or not."

A GOOD START SECURED. It was the general opinion in Mr. Murray's office that the enumerators made a good start. Judging from the crowds that poured into the office this morning for information and blanks one would be led to suppose that the people were anxious to aid in the work and get it off their hands as quickly as possible.

GETTING IN THE REPORTS. Supervisor Murray reached his office hortly after 8 o'clock this morning. His esix was heaped with letters and telegrams, thortly after his arrival a letter-carrier ambered up the wooden steps and threw own upon a table a huge package of postal ards.

These were from the enumerators and gave the number of persons whose pedigrees had been taken by each during yesterday. There were about seven bundred and fifty cards, and hasty examination disclosed that the enumerators had averaged about one hundred and sixty persons each whom he subjected to bis various questions. Mr. subjected to bis various questions. Mr. Murray was too busy to give any ales of the number of persons secured, but it was the belief in the office that 125,000 would be a low figure for yesteritay's work.

The cards, Mr. Murray said, would be counted later in the day, and some time this evening ine exact number would be given to the public. CHOWDS AT THE CENSUS OFFICE.

CROWDS AT THE CENSUS OFFICE.

The highly nervous and somewhat despotic browp-haired and brown-bearded individual who presides over the big tables and amuses questioners by forming them into line so as to be systematic in his transactions, had his hands full from the minute of his arrival this morning handing out blanks and answering questions.

A stream of people, including consus enumerators with complaints, old men, young men, women and children, pushed into the office and asked in all sorts of ways for blanks and general information.

Successively those enumerators approached the dispenser of blanks and asked to see Mr. Murray, but were taken back to a corner rending the arrival of a proper moment for them to confer with the Chief.

TENEMENTS MADE HIM TIBED. TREMENTS NADE HIM THEID.

The enumerator Abraham Alexander was weak and weary. He came up to hand in his resignation. He had visited a number of tenement houses in Ludiew and Essex streets restorday, and became disgusted with the work. He found the work uncongenial and he got a certificate of liness from his doctor to show to Supervisor Murray.

Mr. Murray concluded to let him resign.

they at once conclude that I want money, or 'centa,' and then they say: 'Oh, no; me not have money.'

'It takes all the persuasive power I have to get these people to believe that I am an agent of the Government and engaged in a praiseworthy undertaking.'

A third young man with a natty blue suit and a brand-new straw hat, remarked that, as far as he was concerned, census taking was quite alluring.

'Why, all I have to do when I enter a house it there is a pretty young girl or a baby around. If the manden is at hand I turn my attentions to her, in the absence of the young lady the baby is a good substitute, and I make it a point to keep constantly remarking 'What a pretty baby,' and this suits all hands. Indieed, census taking is like dramming. You must have a knowledge of human nature."

The isn vacancies caused by resignations, which were sent to Mr. Murray restorday, were filled to-day from the reserve list.

Three other discrunited and disgusted apumerators made aswift visit to the Supervisor's effice shortly before 9 sociock and tendered their resignations. Their reasons were sufficiently meritorious to warrant their acceptance, and they were relieved.

As yet no reply had been received from the Department of Justice at Washington in the matter of Enumerator Marks, who was driven out with beer glasses when he visited Smith's shoon on East Forty-fifth street yesterday, 'A statement of the facts was forwarded by Supervico Murray last evoluge. OFFICIALS ARE SATISFIED. Assistant Chief Clerk Wardell, of the Census Office in Washington, said this morning that he was closely watching the progress of the work in this city. Everything appeared to be going along smoothly, and from indications he believed the work would be complained within the specimed time.

Complaints continued to pour in against persons who refused to answer the questions on the schedule, but, taking all in all, matters were progressing swimmingly.

Mr. Wright's Grocery Bill Causes Shooting Affray.

SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD. BOCKLAND, Me., June 3 .- The village of Washington was the scene of great excitement yesterday. Hilton B. Wright, a respecied citizen, attempted to murder L. M. Staples, a well-known lawyer, and C. R. Flanders, Deputy Sheriff of Knox County. The cause of the affair started from a disputed grocery bill which Wright owed Mr. Flanders. Flanders threatened to bring riamiers. Flanders threatened to bring suit, employing Mr. Staples as counsel. Yesterday, while Flanders and Staples were getting ready for a drive, Wright waited up to Flanders, pulled out a pair of revolvers and biazed away.

The revolver was so near his head that the dash singed his hair. Fortunately the ball did not hit him. Staples started to drive away, when Wright followed him up and fired, the ball passing through the back of the carriage and going through the coat, indicing a scratch on his body.

Wright immediately went home, sat in his window and says he will shoot the first man who attempts to arrest him.

KIND MATRON WEBB

Succorer of Gotham's Friendless Waits

for Eighteen Years.

Her Resignation Handed in to the Police Board To-Day.

The Police Board when it met to-day heard the following letter read by Chief Clerk or respectfully ask the Board to see to ask Matron, to date from Aug. 15, it suit the convenience of the Board to suppressor. Respectfully, Many WEBB, Matron. appoint my suc Mrr. Webb will retire without a pensio or compensation of any sort, although about the widow of a policeman.

Mr. Webb, who died some five or six years ago, was mustered out of the service to accept the office of janitor of the Central Office building in Mulberry street at an increased salary. Soon after the salary was reduced below his old pay as a patrolman, but the loss was partially made up for by giving a eslary of $100 a year to his wife for her services as Matron.

In surrendering this Mrs. Webb loses all claim on the Department that can only pas pensions to widows of members of the Department. Yet if ever there was a "member of the
